

Asami Seki

Asami Seki began her ballet training at age three in Japan and continued studying at the Walnut Hill School for the Performing Arts as a scholarship student in 2000. Asami is a winner of the Youth America Grand Prix in 2002. She has danced with the Joffrey Ballet Ensemble and the Nashville Ballet, before returning to her native Sapporo to accept numerous principal roles with various companies and productions. While still actively dancing, Asami is currently attending the Dance ICONS Choreographic Institute in Washington D.C. to further her career as a professional choreographer.
